I, Joe Exotic, was told to sit down with a loss prevention person today. The store manager, Carole, was also in the room with us.

The loss prevention guy, Donnie, told me that I had stolen some merchandise from the company and then asked me about why. Starting in February 2019 I had taken cash from the company multiple times. The most amount I ever took at one time was probably $200. I did this a few times since then. Usually I would spend the money over the weekend.

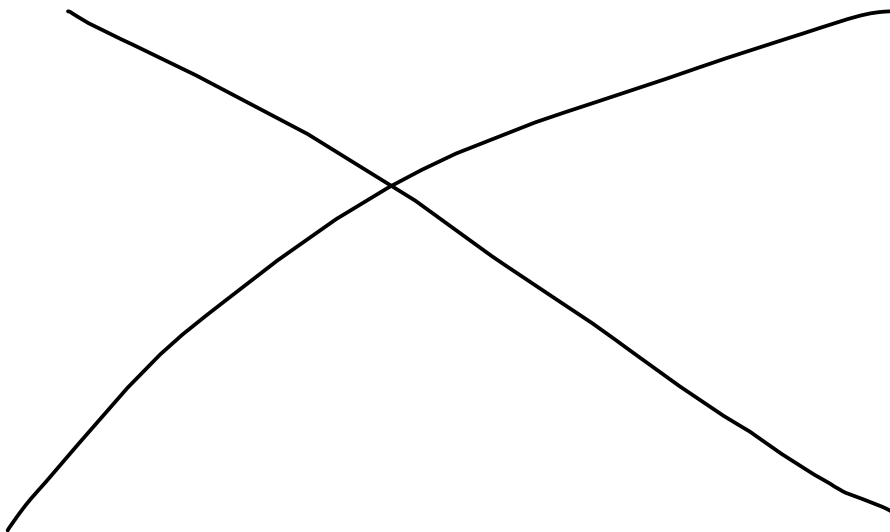

I didn't take merchandise, but I did borrow some product and eventually brought it back to the company. This was around $50 worth of stuff that I brought back. I don't think this should count as stealing because I brought it all back.

During the ~~interrogation~~ interview I was offered a water break. No threats or promises were made to me.

I'm sorry. I can pay the company back with my next paycheck.
