

WICKLANDER-ZULAWSKI

TRAUMA-INFORMED INTERVIEWING

Training. Trauma. Truth.

ABOUT THE COURSE

Attend the Wicklander-Zulawski (WZ) Trauma-Informed Interviewing course and discover methods on how to conduct more effective interviews, resulting in identifying the truth more efficiently and with less resistance while minimizing the re-traumatization of the interviewee. Learn about the impact of trauma on memory, the risks of misclassification of behavior, and practical tools allowing them to facilitate a productive conversation.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- Understand how experiencing a traumatic event will affect the behavior and cognitive abilities of the subject.
- Recognize the variety of causes of trauma and potential difficulties with obtaining information from traumatized individuals.
- Recognize the variety of causes of trauma and potential triggers.
- Utilize the Enhanced Cognitive Interview to improve the subject's memory recall and obtain more information.

DISCLAIMER: In an effort to demonstrate the importance of trauma-informed interviewing and the impact of traumatic experiences, there will be discussions and examples of real-life situations. Class materials, including video examples of traumatized people sharing their experiences, may be sensitive in nature and could be triggering for some individuals.
